Moving forward, it is recommended to organize similar events regularly, incorporating participant feedback for further improvement and inclusivity. Following rigorous discussions and deliberations, the best three participants were selected based on their outstanding contributions and ideas. These winners were honoured with prizes, recognizing their exemplary performance and insightful contributions to the discussions. Dr. Ankush Kansal, Principal TPC also graced the occasion and participated in prize distribution ceremony. The recognition of these participants not only celebrates their achievements but also motivates others to actively engage in such meaningful dialogues and contribute to positive social change.

Numerous people, both men and women, are seated around the table, some looking towards the center and others looking at papers or devices. The room has a high ceiling with several fluorescent light fixtures and ceiling fans. In the background, a presentation screen displays text, and a whiteboard is visible. The overall atmosphere appears to be a formal yet collaborative discussion.
